The Standard Oil Company has a surplus of 115,000,000 barrels of crude oil on hand, and the wells in Illinois, Oklahoma and California are running as never before.

RECORDS for seizure of illicit distilleries in Georgia and adjoining States were broken during the month of September with a total of 127. This is a sample of Prohibition.

MISS A. LOUISE BARRAGE makes this honest confession in The Cloverport News:

"A young lady of Evansville has sued a man for $10,000 for breaking her heart. If we girls should bring suit against all the charming men who break our hearts many of us would get rich quick."

POSSIBLY the magnitude of this year's farm product values in the South will be the better grasped from the simple statement that they will exceed by at least $200,000,000 the total value of all farm crops in the United States in 1890.

Gas Light Talks—No. 42.

Street Railway Power.

The sixth question asked by Mayor Lee is, as we told you yesterday, an important one and the only one we have considered, up to this time, in which His Honor can have any real interest.

His question is: The City of Maysville pays approximately $8,000 to light its streets. How much does the Street Railway pay and which uses the greater amount of current?

In the first place, this company does not supply the Street Railway with current.

The Street Railway owns and keeps in repair its own generators, switchboard and all of its overhead transmission lines. The generators and switchboard are installed in our electric plant and this company furnishes the steam power to run the Street Railway's generators.

For this power and for the rent of the floor space occupied by its apparatus, the Street Railway pays us $200 a month.

In addition, the Street Railway carries on its cars, free of charge, all employees of this company, when they are engaged on the company's business. And this is by no means a small item.

Now, as far as actual use of current, regardless of its source, is concerned, the city is a much larger consumer than the Street Railway. But, while the GROSS income derived from the city lighting contract is greater than that received from the Street Railway—

The contract with the latter corporation is one of the most important, if not THE most important, of this company's assets.

And for this reason: Some years ago, the Street Railway amended its charter, thus obtaining the right to change its motive power from horses to electricity. Its amended charter also gave it the right to acquire stock in an electric lighting company. As such a company was then in process of formation, the purport of this clause was perfectly clear.

It meant competition of a character most dangerous to the interests of the company and its stockholders.

This was eliminated by the purchase of the Street Railway by R. A. Cochran, W. H. Cox and Newton Cooper, who were, at that time, directors of the Gas company.

Instead of being a competitor, the Street Railway was thereby made a customer of the Gas company upon a basis that has enabled this company to reach its present efficiency in the electrical field.

For the power furnished the Street Railway, the amount paid is fair and equitable to both parties and compares more than favorably with the rate charged for the city lighting service. The Street Railway has always paid its power bills in cash.
